GALT HOUSE, The invention of the compount microscope, consisting of two conven-lenses placed one above the other, of the telescope. The simple micro-scope was very early known, a convex lens of rock crystal having been found to the ruins of Ninoveh. The idea o nent is said to have occurred to Har Zansz, or to his son Zacharias, spec-tacle-makers in Holland, about 1590 It is very probable, however, that the same idea was suggested, either accidentally or by way of experiment to others. Gallico, for instance, the great Italian astronomer, it is said, had, before 1610, directed a tube fitted with glasses to the observation o with his microscope "seen and ob-served flies as large as sheep, and that
